- Recognising their name

- We have sent home reading books with each of the children this week. These are wordless to begin with so to allow the children to get into a reading routine at home. Sitting down quietly for 5-10 minutes, holding the book, talking about what they see in the pictures, predicting what they think might happen next and turning the pages and taking care of the book. If the book could come into school each day and we will change the books once a week in the first instance on a Tuesday. We will no longer be sending home the bookmarks with their reading books. This has been a whole school decision.
